Super Bowl

Today is Sunday, February 5, and for millions of you out there reading this, today is a big day. It's _____ Adjective Bowl Sunday, and I imagine that many of you are putting the finishing _____ Noun - Plural on your Super Bowl _____ Noun - Plural. You know what I mean...buying nachos and _____ Noun for snacks, making a run to the liquor and _____ Noun stores, _____ Verb - Present ends in ING your sports jerseys and setting up the 55-inch big screen _____ Noun to watch the game in style. Some people get incredibly obsessed with the sport of football, and the Super Bowl is the _____ Noun of all games.

This year marks the forty-sixth Super Bowl, and I'm sure that _____ Noun - Plural and _____ Noun - Plural fans all over North _____ Location are waiting in anticipation for the opening _____ Noun. But, there's one person that I know of who has absolutely no interest in the game.

Me.

Some people who are reading this blog entry right now might believe that by admitting this, I'm giving up my _____ Noun card', but I have never liked _____ Verb - Present ends in ING sporting events on television. Mind you, I never liked _____ Verb - Present ends in ING sporting events either, but that's a different tale altogether. But, I just can't bring myself to sit in front of a television watching a sport that I really have no interest in. That's not only limited to football either. That could apply for any sport, like golf, tennis, _____ Verb - Present ends in ING (though some claim it's not really a sport), baseball, _____ Noun, and _____ Noun.

I can't even begin to tell you all the dirty looks I get from my fellow _____ Proper Noun - Plural when I tell people that I am not a hockey fan! It's almost equivalent to ripping out their still-beating _____ Part of Body plural and stomping on them with spiked _____.)

But the way I see it, we all have our interests and our likes. I'm just not a sports fan. I've never been skilled in any sports (save for maybe volleyball and _____), and I've never liked watching them. But _____, that's just me.

That's not to say that non-football fans can't enjoy the Super Bowl. Many do. The game does provide a chance for people to get together and _____, and nobody can deny that it's one of the best days for people to fill up on pork rinds, _____ wings, and _____ pizza. There's also those Super Bowl commercials that cost millions to make, but yet are some of the most creative and eye-catching ones ever made. I know several people who tune into the Super Bowl just to see the commercials alone!

And then there's always the halftime show. During the first few years of the Super Bowl, the halftime shows usually showcased _____, but in recent years, the halftime shows are headlined by an artist or band. The tradition for huge stars performing at the Super Bowl began roughly around the early 1990s, as artists like Gloria Estefan and New _____ On The _____ performed.

But it wasn't until _____ when Michael Jackson performed the halftime show that ratings really skyrocketed for the event. Since then, at least one big-named performer has been tied to the event.

Other artists who have performed at the halftime show in past Super Bowls include Prince, _____, _____, Tom Petty & The _____, The _____ Stones, _____, _____, The Black Eyed _____, and Janet Jackson (who along with _____ was responsible for coining the term 'wardrobe malfunction').
